WHERE Buchan Pub

What seasonal triggers do you use for your farming enterprises?

You are invited to a session at the Soil Moisture Probe Producer Demonstration Site (PDS). Join Fiona Baker and Janice Dowe from Agriculture Victoria to discuss soils, pastures, soil moisture probes and triggers for management decisions.

There are now 17 soil moisture probes across central and east Gippsland. This session will explore how soil moisture probes can be a tool to make more informed/timely management decisions. This is one of three sites that will explore how information from soil probes can benefit seasonal management decisions.

MLA's PDS program supports producers to adapt, validate and demonstrate the value of integrating new management practices into local farming systems.

Morning tea provided on arrival.

What's on the agenda?

- Getting to know the demonstrations site and project.
- Trigger points in farm management: What do you use? What do you need to know?
- Soil Moisture Probes – what, how and where?
- The potential to use soil moisture probe data to manage seasonal variability.
